"Mr. Harrington was the Senior Manager of the Marketing Division and lead a team of Advertising and Marketing Specialists. In my 20 years in crop protection, I have met very few with the work ethic of Mr. Harrington. He has the ability to tackle many diverse projects with unparalleled efficiency. He is intimately familiar with several specialty markets including Consumer Products, Turf and Ornamental, Pest Control and Animal Health. He understands both the technical and commercial side of the business and relates well to others. The ability to manage people is not lost on Mr. Harrington, and he takes the time to listen to subordinates. Professionalism is very important to him."

"I was the hiring manager for BJ Harrington and the Global Vice President of the Stoller Group of Companies. BJ Harrington exceeded all expectations as the Director of Marketing. He entered the company during a critical period of change and created innovative programs in a very challenging agricultural environment. While his involvement was nearly all for the USA Operations, he frequently participated in worldwide events and coordination of programs. He entered a neglected department and established stability and credibility. He managed outside consultants and budgets well. Equally important was his ability to manage his subordinates in a paternalistic fashion - always taking ownership of the coordination between internal and external customers. If I was starting my own corporation, he would probably be my first hire."
